“ Memories of Frederick Bokil

As a small boy in Iraq, my parents would send me the six hours drive in a taxi to see my grandmother and uncles in Basra for the summer. In my young eyes, my uncle Frederick and Aunt Layla were very glamorous and I would love staying with them at their new house listening to their modern records and talking about my ambitions. Frederick was a successful modern businessman & always a well dressed figure that I have strived to emulate. We visited the family last year and looked at my mother's old photographs & reminisced about old times. I will always miss him and thank the Lord that he was my uncle. Rest in peace, Uncle.

Peter Titus, nephew.
