Paul had a great passion for music. Growing up the youngest of four brothers, his influence ranged from Motown, Hendrix to Mussorgsky. He was an excellent guitar player, vocalist and songwriter. The best of both worlds collided during a company awarded event, playing under the stars on a stage in the ocean in Hawaii with several known musicians. Paul was very proud of his Cuban heritage and famous for his black beans. He loved being at home enjoying a good meal, surrounded by his Siberian huskies.
