“ I left my career to get a higher-level position, but people over 60 are a pariah to hiring managers. So I started my own business and Raymond was my first customer. He got to talking to me about my life story and he gave me free therapy. He shared aspects of his life with me as well. I knew that in a short period of time I had connected with a person that I could call my friend. Ray was a GOOD person. He told me several times that he was not about becoming rich and that he wanted to help people. I could tell it was a mission for him. There was so much to like about him. I will miss him.

“ Ray and I were High school sweethearts, we had so much fun and made many lasting memories together. Four years ago he contacted me, and we became best friends again. I am so grateful to have had the last four years talking and getting to know him as adults this time. I learned about his struggles that he faced on a daily bases from our conversation and texts that we shared. I tried to be his inspiration for wellness. My heart is broke knowing I will never see or hear from him again. My Dear Ray, you will be missed, you are at peace now with your beloved mother and father.
